Introduction to V&A Dundee

V&A Dundee, Scotland's first design museum and newest world-class visitor attraction, is a ground-breaking centre for design innovation, a place of inspiration and enjoyment, it is the first V&A museum anywhere in the world outside London. V&A Dundee is the first building in Britain to be designed by Kengo Kuma, the renowned Japanese architect now designing the Tokyo 2020 Olympic stadium.

V&A Dundee stands at the centre of the £1 billion transformation of the Dundee waterfront – a new landmark reconnecting the city with its historic waterfront and a major new cultural development for Scotland and the UK.

Visitors can experience the remarkable story of design past, present and future and the vital contribution design makes to all our lives in a multitude of ways: through permanent displays, through an ambitious programme of changing exhibitions showcasing the very best of design from around the world, through new design commissions and fast-changing installations by emerging designers, and through creative learning projects for all our audiences.

The opening exhibition Ocean Liners: Speed and Style, supported by players of People's Postcode Lottery and investment managers Baillie Gifford, explores the designs behind a mode of transport that came to represent the status of nations and the aspirations of millions. The show, co-designed by the V&A and Peabody Essex Museum in Salem Massachusetts, is the first to explore the design and cultural impact of the ocean liner on an international scale.

V&A Dundee has been established in close partnership with the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, drawing on its collections, curatorial expertise and exhibitions. It is run independently with its own Director and, as well as bringing V&A exhibitions to Scotland, it will develop its own exhibitions.

The show, co-designed by the V&A and Peabody Essex Museum in Salem Massachusetts, is the first to explore the design and cultural impact of the ocean liner on an international scale. It re-imagines the golden age of ocean travel and explores all aspects of ship design from the remarkable engineering, architecture and interiors to the opulent fashion and lifestyle on board.

High-quality facilities for visitors to V&A Dundee include an atmospheric 80-cover restaurant, an outdoor terrace with stunning views across the River Tay, a relaxed café bar, guided tours and a shop selling the best of Scottish and international design.

V&A Dundee was recently listed by the Los Angeles Times as one of the 'World's top 5 museums to explore in 2018' and Dundee itself was recently named 'Britain's coolest little city' by GQ magazine. The city became the UK's first UNESCO City of Design in 2014.
